They toi Capt. Allen that they saw Nichola an a companion searching a pocket-box under Shilling's pavilion, and came to the conclusion that the boys had siden the pocketbook. They arrested Nichola, but the other boy escaped. "Me and me friend are coppers in Booklyn." said one of the Sergeants, "I come from the First Precinct and me frend from the Fourteenth."
Nichola said he and his companion had come down to the beach looking for work. They found the pocketbook and were looking at its contents when the Brooklyn Sergeants made their appearance. To an "Evening World" man Nichola gave his friend's name as John Williams, of 261 Evergreen avenue.

The two Sergeants who arrested Nichola showed their baiges, but told Capt. Alen they did not want their names mentioned as they had "faked" sickness and they might be called down for it.

The story of Mrs. Hartmann, as told by the Coney Island police, is that she called at the Sea Beach Hotel, West Brighton, about 5 P. M. yesterday with a male escort. She was not feeling well and was assigned a room.

About 8 o'clock the guests in the hotel were startled by cries from Mrs. Hartmann who came to the hotel whith her holding her down on the bed. The woman was screaming at the top of her voice and struggling violently.

Dr. Plerce was called, and it is said that he pronounced her to be in a critical condition. He suggested that she be removed to a city hospital at once.

The man who brought Mrs. Hartmann was an old friend, and that he would get a doctor. He was last seen taking an 8.20 train for Brooklyn.
